

Congressman Steve King today announced he will host a series of eight town hall meetings across western Iowa in August. All eight town hall meetings are open to the public and the media. Congressman King will deliver opening remarks and take questions.

“I look forward to hearing from concerned citizens and to discussing health care reform and other current issues at these eight meetings,” King said.

“Town hall meetings better equip me to represent western Iowans in Congress and give our region a strong voice on Capitol Hill.”
